

Sue Corrie's One Page Profile

What is important to Sue

- To try to speak up for other carers, especially those who don't like to make a fuss, and wouldn't dream of coming to meetings.
- To help other carers find the help and support they need for themselves and the people they care for.
- To feel that I am making a useful contribution, however small.
- To meet up with other people who feel the same way so that we learn from each other.
- Not to despair and to find things to smile about. Times are difficult, but there are still good people about, who want to make good things happen.

What People Like & Admire about Sue

- Not afraid to volunteer and take awkward jobs on
- Articulate and good at getting points across clearly
- Tenacious and passionate about services for vulnerable people.

How Best to Support Sue

- When I first came to the Learning Disability Partnership Board, I found it was businesslike and professional, but also very warm and welcoming. Lets always keep that feeling.
- My morning schedule is quite unpredictable. Please make allowances if I ever have to arrive a few minutes late.
- Forgive me if I ask silly questions –I 'm still learning!
